CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the Hawaiian Gazette;

SIR: In the Ashertiser of last Saturday I read with the deepest interest the "Thanksgiving Sermon" preached by the Reverend S. C. Damon, pastor of the Bethel Church in all things coming from that source, it will this city, on the 26th of November last, and I well repay perusal, even by those who do | was unavoidably led to compare the remarks of this honored and reverend gentleman upon the King, Government and people of this country, with those not long ago published in the same journal as emanating from "an American citizen" who was said to have "occupied an influential position at the Islands for the last ten years." As you are not in the habit of publishing sermons, you will permit me, perhaps, to call your attention to the following short extracts from among much other valuable and interesting matter with which the sermon abounds. Speaking to his American fellow-citizens residing in these Islands, Mr. Damon said: "As Americans visiting and sojourning on Hawaiian shores, we owe much to the liberal policy and protecting care of this Government; admitting that religious teachers and capital have come hither from America, still to the kings, chiefs and people of Hawaii, we are tangs, chiefs and people of Hawaii, we are under great obligations. In what foreign land or port do Americans enjoy greater privices or more ample protection than we enjoy here? Would American property or shipping have been any more secure even in one of our own ports?" And again: "In no way can we as American citizens confer more honor upon our own beloved country, as we go abroad to visit or reside in foreign lands, than by observing the laws of those lands. It is our duty to show that we are the representatives of a free, intelligent, civilized and Christian nation; and as such, are a Law-abiding, God-fearing, Sabbath-keeping and Bible-reading people." I honor truth, justice and courtesy; and for all these I honor the Rev. S. C. Damon, who gives them utterance, and the congregation of Americans and others of other nationalities, residents in these Islands, who listened to the sermon and requested its publication.

The Bourbons.

We have in the expulsion of Queen Isabella another example of that retributive justice which has followed the race to which she belongs for the last 80 years. The question of who is to be her successor being yet unsettled, it would be premature to say at present that she would be the last reigning Sourbon sovervier; but in the meantime we Bourbon sovereign; but in the meantime we give a brief sketch of that celebrated royal house, the history of which the events taking place in Spain invest just now with a peculiar

ORIGIN OF THE BOURBONS.

The House of Bourbon, which has given so many sovereigns to France. Spain and Italy, is of French origin, deriving its name from the old lords of Bourbon, a noble family which, centuries ago, held very large inaded possessions in the former province of Bourbonnais, situated in the center of France. Through the marriage of a member of the Capet family with a Bourbon heiress, the noble house became allied to royalty in the thirteenth century, and about the middle of the sixteenth we find the first of the race on a throne, in the person of Antoine de Bourthe sixteenth we med the first of the race of a throne, in the person of Antoine de Bour-bon, King of Navarre. Antoine was the father of the gallant rud renowned Henry of Navarre, who afterwards became King of France under the title of Henry IV. With this celebrated prince begins the history of

THE BOURBON DYNASTY IN FRANCE.

And what a history! Extending from 1889 when Henry IV ascended the French throne, to 1830, when Charles X. was driven out of his kingdom by the revolution of July, it embraces a period filled with events of the estant Church in Prussia, but for all the evangelical churches of Germany, to renew before God and men, by the mouths of their ecclesiastical leaders, the mannimous adherence of that church to the Confession of Aungsburg."

Among the items in the papers, which arrived here by the last mall, we were pained to read this short notice: "Last Wednesday Nov. II, died at Cambridge, Mass., the eld-test son of Horace Mann." The late Bourbon dynasties of the Kingdom of Naples and the Duchies of Parma and Piaceuza were founded by Phillip V. of Spain in the early part of the 18th century. They were overthrown for the time by the first Napoleon, but after his downfall the Bour-hous were rectored to the Kingdom of the Two Stellies, which they continued to govern till the revolution of 1800 drove Francis II. to Gaeta as a refuge. This prince still lives, an exile and a murderer, and it does not seem probable that he will ever recover his posses-sions. The Bourhous of Parms and Pincen-ral lost those duplies in 1850 which were

The branch of the Royal Family of France, keown as the House of Orleans, is a younger branch of the Bourbon family, and was founded by Phillip, Duke of Orleans, the younger brother of Louis XIV. From him descended the Duke of Orleans who played so remarkables part in the Brat French revolution as Citizen Egalite, and met so tragical a fate, perishing by the guillotine in 1708. Louis Phillippe, chosen King of the French in the Revolution of July, 1830, was the son of Egalite; and the Count of Paris, grandson of Louis Phillippe, is the present representative of the Orleans branch of the Bourbon family. It will be remembered that this prince and his younger brother, the Duke of Chartres, were with our army for some time during the late war. The Whalino Movement.—A meeting has been beld at the store of E. Marvin, Eqq., for the purpose of considering maturely the advisability of supporting our whaling interests. The meeting was attended by some of the merchants and businoss mgu of the city, who resolved to prosecute whale fishing in our waters on the opening of the ensuing spring. With this view a company was formed with a capital of $10,000, and before the meeting broke up all the shares except eighteen were taken, viz, $2 out of 100. The board of management consists of J. R. Stewart, Edgar Marvin, Capt. Stamp, Capt. Raymur and Mr. T. L. Stahlschmidt, with Mr. John Kreimler as secretary. It is further stated that Capt. Roys, who managed the late expedition, will go to Honolulu before the ensuing season commences, and engage competent hands to assist him in carrying out the intentions of the new company. Unfavorable weather rendered the late expedition unsuccessful; but the formation of this new company, containing as it does many of our best names, both as managers and stockholders, gives us reason to hope that next year will make important developments in connection with this interest.—British Colonia.
